

Feb 15th: The latest snowfall ended on Wednesday evening, leaving a little snow on some of the earlier grooming, and likely the tracks have been filled with blowing snow in a few places. Though the snow base on the Mt Shark trails remains comparatively thin for this time of year, the snow added over the last couple of weeks has covered most of the remaining early season natural hazards. Only a few pieces of brush remain above the snow on the Red 5km loop. - Comment last updated: Feb-15 12PM
