

Jan 14th: With recent snow accumulations in PLPP, trail conditions have improved, but some early season hazards may still be found, particularly further north and at lower elevations. Watch for thin spots with possible exposed dirt or rocks, and brush above the snow in places. Packers also has a few early season hazards remaining, as well as a possible ice flow in the usual spot at about the half way point- use extra caution if descending Packers. Lower Lake Group trail still has a fair amount of brush above the snow, as well as a water crossing that could melt out. The area around Boulton parking lot that had some recent construction is still a little rough and needs more snow before it may be trackset. Note: Fat biking is not permitted on this trail system.
